

LAST OCTOBER DAYS FILLED WITH GREAT WAR ANNIVERSARIES

The last days of October are crowded with anniversaries of the great war. It was in the latter days of October, 1914 that the German hordes were rulling irresistibly over Belgium and the borders of France. Four years later saw Germany's legions deserted by the Austrians, Bulgarians and Turks, and struggling to escape the onslaught of the Allies.

Three of the events of the early war occurred in the last days of October, 1914. Russia declared war on Turkey on the 31st and was followed by France and England, after the bombardment of Russian Black Sea ports by Turkish cruisers. Four British battleships engaged five superior German cruisers in battle off the coast of Chile on October 31 and were badly defeated. This led to the scouring of the seas by British squadrons, which culminated in the memorable battle of Falkland Islands a few weeks later, a British victory. On October 30, the Japanese naval and land forces began the bombardment of Tsingtau, the German Helgoland of the Orient. After eight days of merciless hammering the German garrison of four thousand surrounded this great naval base to the Japanese.

In September, 1918, the British and Arab armies began a successful advance in Mesopotamia and Palestine. By the last half of October the Turkish forces were routed and all the strongholds reduced. The Ottoman Empire petitioned General Townshend for an armistice on October 30. On the next day the armistice, which amounted to unconditional surrender by Turkey, was negotiated.

On the 31st, Austria-Hungary acknowledged defeat by suing for a separate peace with the Allies. The Allied offensive against the Austrians in North Italy began on October 24. British, Italian, French, Czech-Slovak troops and one American regiment smashed through the Austrian defenses and demoralized the enemy. The armistice sued for on October 30 took effect on November 3 and amounted to the complete surrender of the Austria-Hungarian empire.

ACCOUNTS FOR SLOW BUSINESS

Local Tailor Says Buying Will Be Better After Election.

"As long as I can remember, business has never been as good before election as it is after election," said V. V. Victor, Columbia tailor, speaking of business conditions in Columbia.

"Business is slack this fall, according to the business we did last fall, and I attribute it to two things. Times are uncertain just now and people are refraining from buying until conditions are more settled. I expect business to have more vim after election."

"Another reason people are not buying so heavily this year as they did last is that money is scarcer. Last year there was plenty of money in the country and people were extravagant. This year the federal reserve banks are tightening up on money and as a result people haven't the money to spend as they did before."

"The mild weather we have had this fall has made business slower in Columbia. Clear, cold days are a great stimulus to business in the fall. Business has picked up with me quite a bit lately and I attribute it to the change in the weather."

HEADQUARTERS NEAR POLLS

Will Provide County Tickets For All Absentee Voters.

Arrangements are being made by the Democrats to have a headquarters for the University students near the polls next Tuesday, so that they may get final instructions in the matter of voting. The place for the headquarters has not been definitely decided upon, but it will be near the courthouse.

County tickets from all over the state will be available at the headquarters so that each absentee voter will be able to find out the names of all those on the county ticket from his own county.

Vocational men from this state may vote, as well as those from other states who intend to make their homes here, and who have been here a year. No arrangements are made for the other vocational men. Those people from Kansas City and St. Louis who did not register on or before October 27 will also not be allowed to vote.

ADDRESSES WOMEN VOTERS

F. S. Hall Urges Adoption of Constitutional Amendments.

"Constitutional Amendments was the topic chosen by U. S. Hall for discussion at a political meeting at the home of Mrs. R. H. Gray, 1111 University avenue, yesterday. "I have traveled through some 114 counties lecturing on amendments," he said. "On these campaign tours I have traveled in a buggy as many as seventy-five miles and when I had arrived at my destination, found only a few men had gathered to hear me. So you can imagine what it means to me to have more than 500 women in Columbia eager to have me come before them and explain the amendments to them."

Mr. Hall took up the amendments in their order, explained their meaning, and urged their adoption. He emphatically denounced the practice of some voters of voting "NO" on all amendments because they thought that was the easiest thing to do.
